We've got front row seats to your generosity. Our total gift box sales for the past Christmas season show you are more generous than ever! What makes a person want to give? At the top of the list is a desire to show appreciation. This gives a clue to the nature of generous people—they are grateful. Grateful people are also optimistic; while they may not be able to change the world, they know that one small act of kindness makes the world a more pleasant place to live—at least for one other person. Generous people take advantage of the Christmas gifting season but are always looking for giving opportunities. Ground Hog Day is coming up!
