They say it shouldn't be happening here, but we know it is. They are economists; we, the folks in Holmes County. And what's happening is our low unemployment rate, among the best in Ohio. Our rural area has no global company providing a massive amount of jobs, we don't have a major highway or a rail system, and we're not close to any big city. But we do have cooperation between small companies and, as a local Amish businessman quoted in the Cleveland Plain Dealer said, "We have a bunch of entrepreneurs who wake up early and go out and get things done." That's the spirit of Holmes County, and that's why Holmes County works—because everyone works.
