Once the cake is eaten, it is gone. The axiom "You can't have your cake and eat it too" was first used almost 500 years ago and gives us a visual reminder that we can't have things both ways. No argument there. At least, if life is about "have" and "have not." But life is more complex than that. I've yet to meet a person bragging about their cake inventory. Cake is for celebration, not for hoarding or setting on a trophy shelf. Cake, when it does its job right, bestows honor to the person or people being celebrated. Naturally, the best effort demands the best cake, and the best cake is eaten!
Congratulations, Class of 2021!
