TASTE OF THE WEEK
FEATURING
UNCLE MIKE'S JERKY

They're loud, ear-splitting loud. But they emit a certain harmony. It's the chainsaw, and in our recent storm, every chainsaw was called into action. Trees standing straight and tall for 20, 50, and even 100 years were toppled in an instant. We woke up to a natural disaster—well, if we slept at all. The storm was so fierce, few of us did. Daylight was our call to action. Folks around here don't wait for FEMA to show up. Daylight is here, there's trees to clear. A region's disaster readiness can be measured by their chainsaw-to-household ratio. The music of chainsaws was helping friend and neighbor in a disaster.
