How do you calm a chicken? The quick solution—gently grab it by its legs and hold it upside down. But that quiets a bird only because it can't breathe properly. Chickens' lungs are right next to the spine and upper rib cage, and when upside down, all the weight of their organs is pressing on the lungs and air sacs. Gerber's Chicken has a much better method to calm their chickens—treat them right. Gerber's local farmers care for their flocks, making them comfortable and feeding them an all-vegetarian diet, free of antibiotics and growth hormones. We are happy to announce that our meat departments now sell only Gerber's Chicken. Calm chickens, chicken done right.
